THURSDAY EVENING. AUG. 16, 1906. English Trains on Time

The public service rendered by the British railway lines, the convenience to the traveler and the shipper, is far in excess of anything to be found in this country. The British isles are absurdly small when compared with our vast areas, and this of course simplifies the operating problems. There are no snowdrifts to delay schedules, no sec-tions of crudely built track awaiting perfection, and the locomotive: are never far from their home shope. Yet even with allowance for these advantages both freight and passenger traffic are habitually handled with a regular-ity and certainty that deserve the highest degree of praise. In any large terminal in England the number of passenger trains that arrive either exactly on time or a minute or two ahead is far greater than that of trains even the least overdue. Five minutes is usually a safe margin for an important connection. At Finsbury Park, a suburban station just outside London, trains pass on an average of one every two minutes night and day, yet this tremendous traffic is handled with clocklike precision.—Ray Morris in At-

Queer Russian Ways.

If you drive through a Russian vil-lage about 10 p. m. you will be struck by the absolute quiet that pervades the scene. Not a creature, man or dog, is visible moving about. The place has the air of a deserted village. Suppose by some rare untoward chance you come upon a group of men standing together, apparently in conversation, you will notice that they speak in subdued tones, and, wait so long as you please, you will never hear them laugh. The cause is simply this: These Russian peasants believe in evil spir-its; but, unlike the Chinese, they believe that they are attracted, not frightened, by sounds. And so if some frightened, by sounds. And so it some unlucky fate decree that the moujik be put of doors after 11 p. m. he is a painfully silent man. This feeling also extends to some of the southern towns. Kiev, the holy city of Russia, is a model in this respect. After 10 p. m. you may practically have the streets to yourself.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Bearing Another's Burden.
That it is not impossible to ring a new change on woman's aversion to teiling her correct age has been proved by the rector of a New York church. He does not appear to be more than the summer goods, both in white and fancy effects, of which we have a complete line at present, with combined ages foot up to a hundred years. Now, of course, no lady is ever over twenty-five years old, so to keep cuffs attached or separate. The styles are all good and the quality better than peace in the family I suppose I must say I'm seventy five."

But why will you be seventy-seven your next birthday?"

"Because my wife's birthday and mine happen to fail on the same date, prices for the best shirt made should quickly close and"-with a sigh of resignation-"of course I shall have to shoulder both of > Presidential Coincidences, John Adams was eight years older than his successor, Thomas Jefferson; he eight years older than James Madison; he eight years older than James Monroe, and he eight years older than John Q. Adams. George Washington ended his term as president in his sixtyfifth year, and so, too, did John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison and James Monroe. Thomas Jefferson and John Adams died on the same day, July 4, 1826, exactly fifty years after the signing of the Declaration of Independence. One other president, James Monroe, died on July 4. His death oc-Perfect Features. We have at present every

In a perfect face every feature should bear a certain proportion to every other feature. The width of the face should be equal to five eyes. The distance between the eyes should be exactly equal to one eye. Another important relation is that between the eyes and the mouth. The width of the eyes should be equal to two-thirds that of the mouth. The nose should be equal in length to the height of the forehead, of a regular shape and precisely defined outline.

I have told you of the Spaniard who always put on his spectacles when about to eat cherries that they might look bigger and more tempting. In like manner I make the most of my enjoyments, and, though I do not cast my cares away, I pack them in as lit-tle compass as I can and carry them as conveniently as I can for myself and never let them annoy others .-Southey.

She Knew,
"Maria," said Boggles to his wife, with an idea of instructing her in political economy, "do you know what civil service is?"

"Jasper." replied Mrs. Boggles, with memory of recent contact with the cook, "there isn't any."
